IDEAS WORTH SPREADING

IDEAS WORTH SPREADING

TED

TED is an annual event where some of the world's leading thinkers and doers are invited to share what they are most passionate about. "TED" stands for Technology, Entertainment, Design — three broad subject areas that are, collectively, shaping our future. And in fact, the event is broader still, showcasing ideas that matter in any discipline. Attendees have called it "the ultimate brain spa" and "a fourday journey into the future." The diverse audience — CEOs, scientists, creatives. philanthropists — is almost as extraordinary as the speakers, who have included Bill Clinton, Bill Gates, Jane Goodall, Frank Gehry, Paul Simon, Sir Richard Branson, Philippe Starck and Bono.

TED was first held in Monterey, California, in 1984. In 2001, Chris Anderson's Sapling Foundation acquired TED from its founder, Richard Saul Wurman. In recent years, TED has expanded to include an international conference, TEDGlobal; media initiatives, including TED Talks and TED.com; and the TED Prize.

TEDx

In the spirit of ideas worth spreading, TEDx is a program of local, self-organized events that bring people together to share a TED-like experience. At a TEDx event, TEDTalks video and live speakers combine to spark deep discussion and connection in a small group. These local, self-organized events are branded TEDx, where x=independently organized TED event. The TED Conference provides general guidance for the TEDx program, but individual TEDx events are self-organized.*

On March 21st, 2013, the fourth annual TEDxCLE event, BONFIRE // IGNITE takes place at The Cleveland Museum of Art. Learn more at www.TEDxCLE.com/2013

Cleveland, Ohio. The fire that fueled this city in the early part of the 20th century was hot & bright. This flame of innovation sparked from the coming together of those across all walks of life. Both penniless immigrants & captains of industry shared in the work that made this city great. As a community, we rose - and we did so together.

For a variety of reasons, the bonfire of innovation began to dwindle as the latter part of the century came and went. Industry left.

Citizens left - some just the city, some leaving the entire region.

But the curious, the passionate - many remained. The bonfire was not as bright or centralized - in fact it wasn't a bonfire at all. A series of brush fires sparked in pockets all over the city - bright spots where innovators continued to persist to make change & move our region forward. But the way those from the outside viewed our region - as well as many of us ourselves - was less than favorable. When innovation is siloed, the impact is not nearly as strong.

In recent years the brush fires have persisted - but some have merged. This trend of working together needs to be adopted in every sector for real change to occur. We all share a desire for our region to once again build the bonfire of innovation & proudly state, "This is what it means to live in the Rustbelt in 2013. We claim our heritage, we drive our future & we do it by working together."

Thank You

Thank you. For being a creator. A catalyst. An entrepreneur. An artist. A technologist. A designer. A scientist. A thinker. A doer. But more than anything, thank you for doing this in Cleveland.

Community

TEDxCLE was created to bring all of you together. So that we can share ideas to inspire others in our community. And also, to share Cleveland innovation, development and positive change with the world. To facilitate this, please blog, tweet and chat about your experience, during and following the event.

On Twitter, Instagram and Vine, please remember to use the hashtag #TEDxCLE to connect with others or send us a message @TEDxCLE. You can also hashtag individual speakers (e.g., #michaelpultz). On Facebook, post messages on our Wall. On Flickr, tag your photos with #TEDxCLE. On Foursquare, check-in at The Cleveland Museum of Art to let everyone know you are there for TEDxCLE.

A Lighting Revolution
#garyallen

Dr. Gary Allen has been developing novel, energy-efficient light sources as a physicist with GE Lighting for 25 years. With over 40 issued US Patents, his recent contributions include the world's first Energy Star certified LED replacement for the traditional incandescent light bulb, providing ~80% lower energy consumption.

The significant eco contribution of the rapidly unfolding LED Lighting Revolution, and Cleveland's unique heritage and promising future in it, are the themes of his TEDTalk.

He has a PhD in Plasma Physics from Princeton University, and BS/MS degrees in Engineering from Penn State.

Michael Fleming
Instant City: Rapid Revitalization in CLE
#michaelfleming

While studying International Relations at Boston University, Michael Fleming found himself moving up the ranks in his night job as a chef, ultimately becoming the executive chef for two restaurants in the Boston area. After many trips during his cooking years back to his hometown of Cleveland, Michael decided to make the move in 2004 in order to be a part of the city's revival. In 2011, Michael received his Master of Urban Planning, Design and Development degree at Cleveland State University. In 2012, he accepted the position of Executive Director of St. Clair Superior Development Corporation. Michael currently sits on the board of directors for Project Learn and for Bike Cleveland.

Mansfield Frazier

BioCellars: Reviving Cleveland Neighborhoods

#mansfieldfrazier

Mansfield Frazier is a native Clevelander and a product of the Cleveland public school system. He left Cleveland in 1969, and for the next 30 years lived all over the United States, pursuing activities that can best be described as checkered at best, an experience he feels greatly shapes his perspectives as a writer and journalist. Self-taught as a writer, he returned to Cleveland in 1995 and began his career as a journalist. He currently serves as the Executive Director of Neighborhood Solutions, Inc., a non-profit that publishes Reentry Advocate, a national magazine that goes into various prisons, libraries, county jails, halfway houses and prison ministries around the United States.

Hallie and Eric Kogelschatz, Founders & Curators

Upon returning to Cleveland from Boston in 2009 Hallie & Eric founded TEDxCLE. Their goal remains to bring positive thinking from Cleveland to the world, helping to reshape the way that citizens & those outside of the region think of Cleveland.

Outside of TEDxCLE, Hallie & Eric act as creative problem solvers who collaborate with many organizations in Cleveland & beyond. They do this through their innovation & action collaborative, shark&minnow, as well as by sitting on several boards & volunteering.

The Kogelschatz duo is honored to have you here & look forward to more innovation, growth and positive change in Cleveland because of big thinkers like you.

Jessica Melton, Production Manager

Jessica Melton is a native Clevelander with a passion for helping preserve history. During her studies at The Ohio State University, she completed a study abroad program working on an archaeological dig in Greece. Since returning to Cleveland, she has earned her Master's degree in library and information science from Kent State University. As part of this program, she helped preserve some of Cleveland's history by digitizing and cataloging the collection of The Cleveland Artists Foundation. During this time, she also held an internship at BVU: The Center for Nonprofit Excellence. Here she developed an interest in helping local nonprofit and philanthropic ventures. After graduation, Jessica accepted a position at the Foundation Center to further this interest. Jessica recently joined TEDxCLE to help share innovation from Cleveland with the world.

Joan Soskin, Stage Manager

After a year-and-a-half of getting to know Cleveland, Joan Soskin will tell anyone that it's love. Born and raised in a small suburb just outside Minneapolis, Joan is a native Midwesterner. Moving to Cleveland, she swapped ten thousand lakes for one great one and has rediscovered her love for snow, local food, and friendly strangers. Joan earned undergraduate degrees in English and International Studies from Duke University and specialized in creative writing and Latin American affairs. By day, she works in operations management for an industrial supply distributor; in spare time, she pursues her passion for all things local, from urban farms to repurposed warehouses to social entrepreneurship. She joined the TEDxCLE team to learn more about the forces driving progress in our community and to be - in some small way - a part of it.
